The University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble 1993-2012:
Repertoire, Commissions, and Premieres

(May 2012)

Abstract of a doctoral essay at the University of Miami.

Doctoral essay supervised by Professor Gary D. Green.

No. of pages in text. (253)

The scope and focus of this essay is the repertoire performed, commissioned, and premiered by the Frost Wind Ensemble during Gary Green's tenure as Director of Bands at the University of Miami Frost School of Music, 1993 – present (2012). It includes a detailed catalog of all repertoire performed by the Frost Wind Ensemble in three different formats: by composer, by title, and also as a rendering of the actual concert programs. In addition to the chapters containing the various sorted repertoire catalogs, the essay devotes two chapters to chronological lists of works that have been commissioned (individually or through a consortium) or premiered by Mr. Green and the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble.

This essay is a much-needed addition to wind-ensemble research regarding the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble's influence and role in encouraging a significant and lasting repertoire for the medium. It is my hope that conductors, performers, and other interested parties will find this a useful resource not simply for information about pieces this ensemble has performed or commissioned, but as an account of how the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble serves as a model for others in approaching this work with passion, dedication, and commitment to only the best in music.

DEDICATION

to my brother Davis Stuart Phillips, whose endless curiosity and genuine humanity are constant motivators

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to express my sincerest gratitude and thanks to the members of my doctoral committee. Professor Gary D. Green, Dr. Margaret Donaghue Flavin, Professor Dale W. Underwood, and Dr. Paul F. Wilson have all contributed to my musical and scholarly growth in valuable and varying ways. The completion of this project would not have been possible without their guidance and support. Specifically to Professor Green, your counsel during the pursuit of my doctoral degree at the University of Miami is beyond measure. I have grown and learned more than I will ever be able to express.

To my dear friends and colleagues at the University of Miami, Charles Damon, Chris Cicconi, Matt Taylor, and Dr. Thomas Keck, I will forever cherish your sincere and valued friendship.

I would also like to thank the mentors/teachers who helped guide me through my childhood and adolescent years, and who gave me so many opportunities to succeed: Bobbie Hooks (deceased), Nancy Laviano, Marion Post, and C. Paul Steuart.

To my parents, Lawrence William Phillips and Elizabeth Joan Davis Phillips, I cannot adequately or appropriately express how my life has been shaped by your examples. Thank you for your unconditional support and love.

To my mentor, colleague, and friend, Dr. Bobby Adams. The musical and life lessons we have shared have shaped my life and professional career in ways I am not even aware of yet. I am forever in your debt.

Finally, to my beloved wife Dr. Tammara K. Phillips, thank you for your encouragement and faith during this tumultuous time in our lives. I am eternally grateful for your love, support, and tranquility.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

The “modern” wind band was developed primarily in the United States during the latter part of the nineteenth century and continued to flourish and find its place in musical culture during the twentieth century. Many conductors and teachers have worked throughout their careers to elevate the level of musical performance in wind bands, and are on a continuous mission to discover, commission, and perform the most truly significant literature for various groupings of woodwinds, brass and percussion instruments. There are few wind ensembles and conductors prominent in the wind band field that are as passionate about this as the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble and its artistic director/conductor Gary D. Green.

Throughout his career, Gary Green has proven his commitment to supporting and nurturing the highest possible standards of performance and artistic expression that are achievable with the wind band as the vehicle. From the beginning of his career as a high school band director to his time as the conductor of college-level wind ensembles at the University of Connecticut and later at the University of Miami, Green has consistently demonstrated that the driving force behind his passion for “band music” was not “band,” but rather “music.” It is all about the literature.

Anyone who spends time talking about music with Gary Green quickly realizes that, to him, everything begins with the composer. In our tradition of Western art music, without the composer what is it that we as performers and interpreters would do? As a result of this thinking, Green is really never so concerned with the instrumentation of a piece (band, orchestra, etc...); what is of the highest value to him is what it is that the composer is trying to express artistically. In commissioning a work, Green rarely puts parameters on what it is that he wants from a composer. Rather, it is his hope that composers will compose what is in their hearts and minds, and that this process will yield a composer's truest form of artistic expression through a medium consisting primarily of wind, brass and percussion instruments.

The scope and focus of this essay is the repertoire performed, commissioned, and premiered by the Frost Wind Ensemble during Gary Green's tenure as Director of Bands and Conductor of the Frost Wind Ensemble at the University of Miami Frost School of Music, 1993 – present (2012). It includes a detailed catalog of all repertoire performed by the Frost Wind Ensemble. The catalog of repertoire included in this document is presented in three different formats: by composer, by title, and also as a rendering of the actual concert programs, so as to highlight programming choices and contexts, as well as guest performers and conductors. In addition to the chapters containing the various sorted repertoire catalogs, the essay devotes two chapters to chronological lists of works that have been commissioned (individually or through a consortium) or premiered by Mr. Green and the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble.

The main purpose of this doctoral essay is to provide a resource to conductors, teachers, and other scholars with regard to the leadership that the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble, guided by Gary Green's artistic vision, has contributed to this artistic medium and the profession, both in commissioning/performing new works of the highest quality from recognized and sought-after composers, as well as in championing other new works for various groupings of woodwind, brass, percussion instruments that are of lasting significance and artistic value. It is my hope that conductors, performers, and other interested parties will find this a useful resource not simply for information about pieces this ensemble has performed or commissioned, but as an account of how the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble serves as a model for others in approaching this work with passion, dedication, and commitment to only the best in music.

Despite the great influence and impact that Gary Green and the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble have had on the development of a high-quality and lasting repertoire for the wind ensemble, there has been no significant scholarship compiled in one document with regard to these contributions and the development of said repertoire by this ensemble's commissions and performances. It is for this reason that I have decided to complete this project, in the hope that this research will ultimately be instrumental (no pun intended) in establishing such needed scholarship and will one day lead to further study regarding the impact that this "missionary work" has had and will have on the repertoire of the wind ensemble.

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE AND METHOD

Review of Related Literature

The research for this essay began with the University of Miami Frost School of Music's "program books," in order to acquire the original concert programs for the Frost Wind Ensemble from 1993-2011. Once this information was collected, further literature was researched in support of the material discovered. This "literature" is in the form of books, dissertations, articles, recordings and recording liner notes, recording reviews from various journals, composer websites, and the musical scores themselves.

Even at the earliest stages of research in this project, there have been three books that offer important historical information about the medium of the wind band and its development, with regard to both the ensemble itself and its repertoire. Richard Hansen's book The American Wind Band: A Cultural History is a history of the wind band and its development in the United States of America.¹ The primary focus of the text is to provide historical perspective with regard to the evolution of the medium from its earliest beginnings (before "Colonial Times") up to what is regarded today as the modern Wind Ensemble. The discussion also includes examples of the repertoire of the wind band as it has evolved over time, and it includes important figures that have played key roles in the development of this repertoire. The second book that is of great importance to this project is Frank L. Battisti's The Winds of Change: The Evolution of the Contemporary

American Wind Band/Ensemble and its Conductor.² The material contained in Battisti's book deals primarily with the modern concept of the American wind band and its evolution as an art form. While it does give some historical perspective, the book's primary focus is the evolution of the medium (and its conductors) through the growth and development of a significant body of repertoire. Many examples of programs and the pieces that have become accepted as benchmarks in the repertoire over time are included. The third and final book is The Wind Ensemble And Its Repertoire: Essays on the Fortieth Anniversary of the Eastman Wind Ensemble, edited by Frank J. Cipolla and Donald Hunsberger.³ The use of this book as a resource for this research is many-fold. Not only does it provide important information about the world's "first" modern wind ensemble created at the Eastman School of Music (Eastman Wind Ensemble), it also provides, much like the Battisti book, some historical perspective on the evolution of the medium and its repertoire. In addition, this book also serves as a resource for how the author ultimately configured the repertoire catalogs in this doctoral essay.

One major resource for information on the numerous commissions and premieres are doctoral dissertations and documents of a similar function. An example of such a valuable resource is a DMA essay by one of the more recent graduates of the DMA Instrumental Conducting program at the University of Miami, under Gary Green's supervision, "Christopher Rouse's Wolf Rounds: Compositional Insight and World

² Frank L. Battisti. The Winds of Change: The Evolution of the Contemporary American Wind Band/Ensemble and its Conductor. (Galesville: Meredith Music, 2002).

Premiere Performance Preparation.”⁴ The significance of this essay is not simply in its content, but also the fact that the chair of Dr. Rand’s committee was Gary Green. This document is undoubtedly imbued with his philosophies and beliefs about music and composition. This essay provides valuable information about the process of creating a new piece of repertoire for the wind ensemble from the very beginning stage of commissioning to its ultimate premier performance (on this occasion in Carnegie Hall), from the perspectives of both the commissioning ensemble’s conductor (Gary Green) and the composer (Christopher Rouse). In this document we find valuable pieces of evidence that make the case for the continued championing and commissioning of a significant body of repertoire for the wind ensemble as a viable medium of artistic expression – on the part of both the composer and the performer. This DMA essay and other essays and dissertations similar to it helped supply the appropriate information for each of the pieces highlighted in the commissions and premieres chapters of this document.

The next major area of review encompasses the audio recordings (CDs) that have been released by University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble with Green as their conductor. Urban Requiem: New Music for Wind & Percussion is the first commercial recording released by the University of Miami Wind Ensemble with Gary Green as the conductor.⁵ The material contained is significant with regard to both the liner notes and the performance of the repertoire. Michael Colgrass’ Urban Requiem was one of the first major commissions by Gary Green after his arrival at the University of Miami, and has become a benchmark piece in the repertoire of the wind ensemble. The second recording released by the University of Miami Wind Ensemble with Gary Green as its conductor was Christina's World: New Music for Winds & Percussion, Vol. 2; this is also the second volume in the "New Music for Winds & Percussion" series released by Albany Records.⁶ Again, the liner notes are a significant source of information about the recorded repertoire and the reason for its inclusion in this series. Of particular note is the title piece of the CD: Christina's World. Kenneth Fuchs, an established composer who is a graduate of the University of Miami, composed this piece. The third installment in a series of recordings released by Albany Records is Ivy Green.⁷ This recording of the University of Miami Wind Ensemble contains Equus by composer Eric Whitacre. This piece was recorded once before by another ensemble, but was commissioned by Gary Green and the University of Miami Wind Ensemble. The CD is a valuable source of information both aurally and through liner notes that are contained within. Illuminations is yet another installment in the series of recordings released by Albany Records of the University of Miami Wind Ensemble (Gary Green, conductor).⁸ Recorded are two works that find the UM Wind Ensemble and conductor Gary Green collaborating with fellow UM faculty members Christine Nield (flute) and Margaret Donaghue (clarinet) on two significant pieces of repertoire for the wind ensemble and the solo instruments: Song Book by David Maslanka and Double Star by David Gillingham.

⁸ University of Miami Wind Ensemble; Gary Green, conductor. Illuminations. Albany Records TROY690 (CD), 2004.

The first recording released of the Frost Wind Ensemble on the NAXOS Wind Band Classics label is Reflections.⁹ Recorded here are two works by composers close to the conductor Gary Green: David Maslanka & Thomas Sleeper. The reason for its inclusion in this bibliography is the work by David Maslanka: Symphony No. 3. This symphony was commissioned and premiered by conductor Gary Green when he was still Director of Bands at the University of Connecticut. This recording marks the first time Maslanka's Symphony No. 3 has been recorded. Wolf Rounds is the most recent recording released by the Frost Wind Ensemble, and the second released under the NAXOS Wind Band Classics label.¹⁰ This recording is perhaps the most adventurous to date for this ensemble. The three works it contains are all significant contributions to the repertoire of the wind ensemble by composers who are recognized as significant: Michael Daugherty, David Maslanka, and Christopher Rouse. It is Rouse's piece Wolf Rounds that supplies the album's title. The information contained in the liner notes about the music and performers, let alone the recording itself, are all valuable resources in the continued quest for quality repertoire for the wind ensemble.

As important as it is to record and publish recordings of important additions to the repertoire for wind ensemble, equally important as a research source are the critical review of such recordings in regarded journals and music magazines. Reviewed in Jack Sullivan's article "Collections" is the University of Miami Wind Ensemble's first recording with Gary Green as music director and conductor.¹¹ The overall review is favorable. In Barry Kilpatrick's first review of the University of Miami Ensemble, the author states: "This is my first exposure to the University of Miami Wind Ensemble.¹² I hear no weaknesses. This is an excellent account of three fine new works." Like the other two reviews that follow later, this review is positive and lauds the effort of the ensemble, its conductor, and the repertoire that is performed. In a second review by the critic Barry Kilpatrick, entitled "Guide to Records: Maslanka; Gillingham," Kilpatrick reflects on the University of Miami Wind Ensemble's CD Illuminations.¹³ The compositions, solo performances, and ensemble performance are all praised in this review. The author in his opening sentence lauds the commitment to excellence that this ensemble and its conductor strive for. The Frost Wind Ensemble's CD Reflections received reviews from two separate critics. The first was by Peter Burwasser, entitled "Classical Recordings: Sleeper - Trumpet Concerto; Maslanka - Symphony No. 3," the second entitled "Guide to Records - Maslanka: Symphony 3; Sleeper: Trumpet Concerto" and written by Allen Gimbel.¹⁴ Both reviews are favorable with regard to the compositions and performance. The Gimbel review recognizes and attributes the impetus for the two compositions to the influence of conductor Gary Green.¹⁵ In the latest review for the Frost Wind Ensemble entitled “Wolf Rounds,” the critic Barry Kilpatrick bestows high praise on the members of the Frost Wind Ensemble and conductor Gary Green for their execution and interpretation of three new works for the wind band medium by composers Michael Daugherty, David Maslanka, and Christopher Rouse.¹⁶ Kilpatrick states the following in his review: “As expected, fine readings by the Frost Wind Ensemble of the University of Miami. Excellent sonics.”

There are two articles that I have reviewed and have included because of their significance in making a case for Gary Green’s influence on encouraging significant literature for the wind ensemble. The first is an article written by Dayl Burnett and published in the International Trombone Association Journal titled “New Maslanka Concerto Gets Premiere.”¹⁷ This article is an interview conducted with composer David Maslanka, trombonist Tim Conner, and conductor Gary Green regarding the premier of the composer’s concerto for trombone. It contains insight about the creative process of premiering a new piece of music from the perspective of all stakeholders involved (composer, soloist, conductor), as well as the perils and joys of the commissioning process itself. The second article, written by Salvatore Terrasi and entitled “Creating History with New Repertoire: An Interview with Gary Green,” was published in The Instrumentalist in 1998.¹⁸ The questions that are posed in the interview are, for the most part, inconsequential. The response to the questions is where real insight is gained. The material within highlights Gary Green's philosophical commitment to promoting, teaching, and performing repertoire of the highest quality with the wind ensemble as a valued artistic vehicle.

Items that serve as major source material for this essay are the musical scores of the compositions themselves. In addition to being works of artistic value, they supply vital information for basic analysis and score study, reference to the recordings, and basic information about the composition (instrumentation, dedication, program note and notes to the conductor, etc...). A few examples of the scores being utilized in this study are as follows: Urban Requiem (Colgrass), Ladder to the Moon (Daugherty), Christina's World (Fuchs), Double Star (Gillingham), Concerto for Trombone and Wind Ensemble (Maslanka), Song Book for Flute and Wind Ensemble (Maslanka), Equus (Whitacre), and Wolf Rounds (Rouse). Each of these scores is published as indicated and will be used in its published form.¹⁹ The remaining scores used in this study are documented in the Bibliography portion of this document.

This essay is a much-needed addition to wind-ensemble research due to the lack of scholarship available for conductors and teachers of wind bands/ensembles regarding the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble's influence and role in encouraging a significant and lasting repertoire for the medium. This document serves as an account of the Frost Wind Ensemble's devotion to furthering the artistic value and merit of music composed for various groupings of wind, brass, and percussion instruments, and, more specifically, what musical compositions this includes.

Method

The essay begins with introductory material that outlines the scope and focus of the project. The chapters that follow catalog the complete repertoire of the Frost Wind Ensemble under the direction of Gary Green, 1993 – present (2012). The repertoire catalog included in the document is presented in three different formats: by composer, by title, and also as a rendering of the actual concert programs so as to highlight programming choices and contexts, as well as guest performers and conductors. The facts regarding literature and programming have been determined by research utilizing the University of Miami Frost School of Music's "program books" and concert recordings.

In addition to the chapters containing the various sorted repertoire catalogs, the essay devotes two chapters to chronological lists of works that have been commissioned (individually or through a consortium) or premiered by Mr. Green and the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble. Again, these lists have been compiled through the research completed using the University of Miami Frost School of Music's "program books," and through consultation with the conductor of the Frost Wind Ensemble, Gary D. Green.

Also included are four appendices with valuable information related to this study: Discography, Guest Conductors, Guest Artists/Soloists, and Personnel Roster.

Through the research presented in this document, I believe that the contributions outlined with regard to encouraging a significant repertoire of music for the wind ensemble will be seen as work of lasting significance and artistic value, and again, as an account of how the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble, guided by Gary Green's artistic vision, has approached this work with passion, dedication, and commitment to only the best in music.

COMMISSIONS

The list of commissions presented in this chapter is organized chronologically by the year that the commission/composition was completed. It includes all commissions (either alone or as a member of a consortium) that the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble (1993-2012), under the artistic leadership of Gary D. Green, was involved in.

CATALOG OF REPERTOIRE: COMPOSER

The catalog of repertoire presented in this chapter is organized alphabetically by COMPOSER, and includes the complete “concert repertoire” performed by the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble (1993-2012), under the artistic leadership of Gary D. Green. Not included in the catalog are separate masters and doctoral conducting recitals where the Frost Wind Ensemble performed as a single component in the overall recital. Also not included are two concerts that the author believes occurred, but for which no supporting documentation (programs, recordings, etc...) can be found: March 1994 & November 1995.

CATALOG OF REPERTOIRE: TITLE

The catalog of repertoire presented in this chapter is organized alphabetically by TITLE, and includes the complete “concert repertoire” performed by the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble (1993-2012), under the artistic leadership of Gary D. Green. Not included in the catalog are separate masters and doctoral conducting recitals where the Frost Wind Ensemble performed as a single component in the overall recital. Also not included are two concerts that the author believes occurred, but for which no supporting documentation (programs, recordings, etc...) can be found: March 1994 & November 1995.

CONCERT PROGRAMS

This chapter presents the concert program reproductions, organized chronologically, containing the complete “concert repertoire” performed by the University of Miami Frost Wind Ensemble (1993-2012), under the artistic leadership of Gary D. Green. Not included in these concert programs are separate masters and doctoral conducting recitals where the Frost Wind Ensemble performed as a single component in the overall recital. Also not included are two concerts that the author believes occurred, but for which no supporting documentation (programs, recordings, etc...) can be found: March 1994 & November 1995.
